

Supporting Information for “The Dependence of Tropical Modes of Variability on Zonal Asymmetry”

Xiaoning Wu¹, Kevin A. Reed¹, Christopher L. P. Wolfe¹, Gustavo M.

Marques², Scott D. Bachman², Frank O. Bryan²

¹School of Marine and Atmospheric Sciences, Stony Brook University, Stony Brook, NY

²Climate and Global Dynamics Laboratory, National Center for Atmospheric Research, Boulder, CO

Contents of this file

1. Figures S1
2. Figures S2
3. Figures S3

Corresponding author: Xiaoning Wu, School of Marine and Atmospheric Sciences, Stony Brook University, Stony Brook, NY 11794, USA. (xiaoning.wu.1@stonybrook.edu)

August 9, 2021, 1:46am

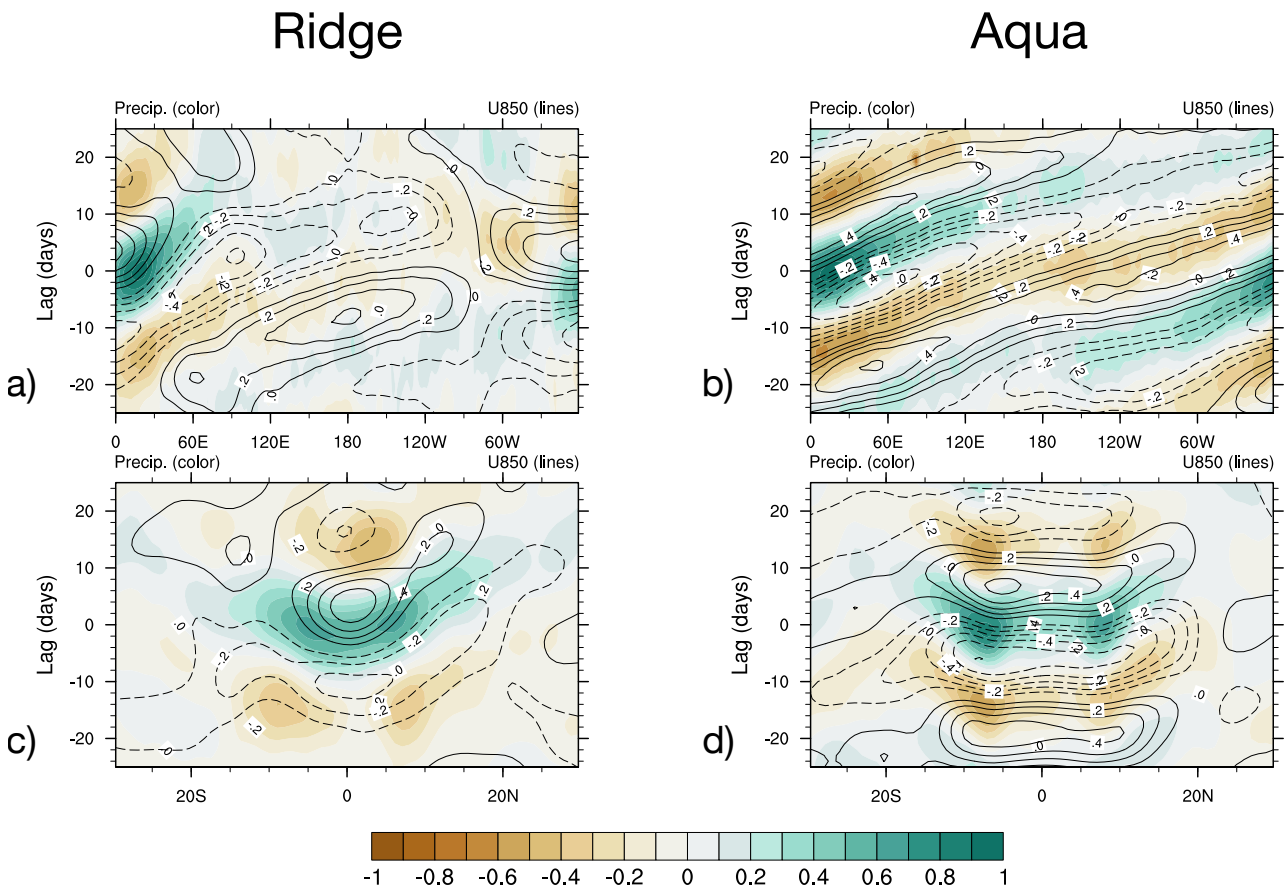

Figure S1. As Fig. 2 c–f in the main text, but for boreal summer.

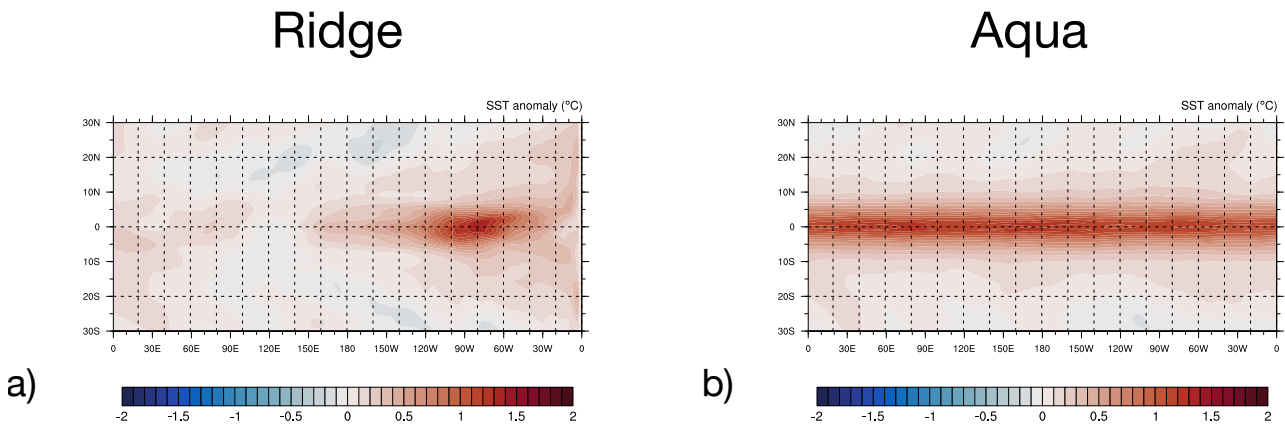

Figure S2. As Fig. 4 a–b in the main text, but for SST.

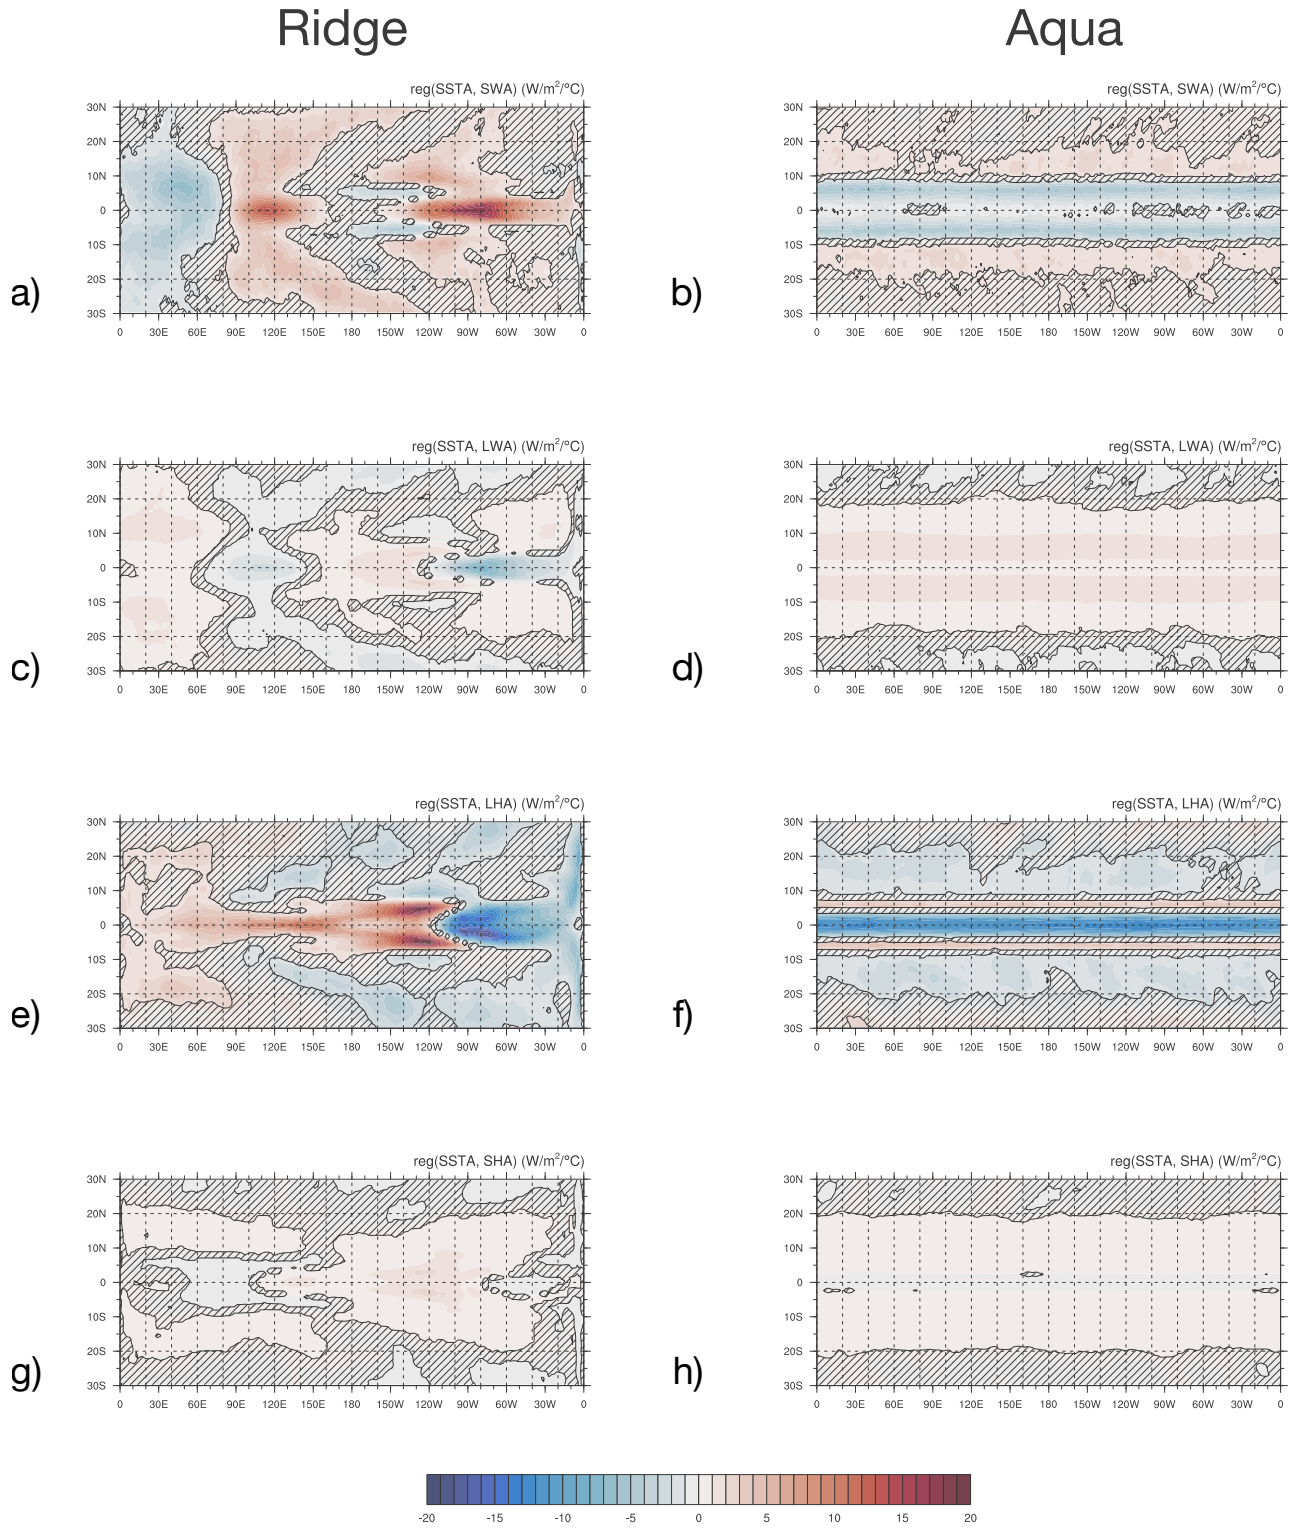

Figure S3. As Fig. 4 e-f in the main text, but for the components of surface heat flux anomaly: (a-b) Shortwave; (c-d) Longwave; (e-f) Latent heat; (g-h) sensible heat.